Past projects have included creative solutions for food waste, humanitarian aid, education, water shortage, energy efficiency, inclusivity, bullying, inequality, poverty, homelessness, child abuse, over-consumption, mental illness, urban living and much more.

Background

Negative experiences happen in all of our lives: difficulties with work or finances, the breakdown of a relationship, overwhelming family responsibilities, or a significant setback for example. Mental health can affect anyone.

There are many ways we can cope with mental illness: establishing and maintaining relationships, discussing our issues and taking action when possible, however there are stigmas surrounding mental health that we unfortunately need to tackle.

The challenge

How can you use your creative skills to aid those with mental health issues? If your life or the life of those around you has been touched by mental health issues, then use these experiences as possible entry points into the brief and as a means of research to explore potential routes and solutions.

The challenge really is boundless in however you want to approach it, all we ask is that the outcome is optimistic and empowering towards the audience. Let's open up and tackle this issue head on to create some real positive change in the world.

Background

Equality is a human right. Both men and women are entitled to live with dignity and with freedom from want and from fear. Whether this be gender equality as a precondition for advancing development and reducing poverty: empowered women contribute to the health and productivity of whole communities, improving the prospects for the next generation. Or more general human rights for minorities, those under threat of being suppressed or living in fear because of who they are or what they believe.

The challenge

Can you think of a way to change current behaviours and inspire people to understand the value brought by treating everyone equally?

You may simply want to raise awareness, or perhaps you can think of a way to actively change human behaviour and understanding.

Background

The most basic requirements for refugees to regain their independence are housing, language and employment. Without housing, people become destitute; without the ability to speak the local language, it is very difficult to get a job; without employment independence is almost impossible.

The challenge

How can we creatively support the empowerment of refugees in host countries, and improve their access to opportunities?

Local language: classes can be expensive and restrictive in terms of the amount that you can study, when and where. What creative solutions could help with this?

Employment: refugee unemployment in the UK is 50%, and many refugees are overqualified for the jobs they take. How can we find creative ways to increase people's chances of finding meaningful work quickly?

Integration: how can we build bridges with local communities? Can you find ways to keep community at the heart of these proposals?

Empowerment: Can you consider innovative ways for Help Refugees to raise more funds to allow us to do more for empowerment projects?

Background

Our consumerist culture means we are fast burning through the planet's finite resources and in the past three decades alone, 1/3 of our natural resource space has been consumed.

The challenge

The Conscious Consumption brief is an opportunity to create solutions to help re-direct our worlds trajectory towards self-destruction.

This could explore themes on not just what we consume, but how and why.

Where do the things we consume come from, and what are their impact e.g. environmental, psychological and/or societal.

What methods could we use to design products that are sustainable and have a minimal or even positive ecological impact? And what would these products be?

How could mindsets be shifted (especially in first world countries) away from misguided, and damaging purchasing habits? Why do we consume, and what are the often overlooked motivations for consumption – and are there ways we can nurture or redirect these energies?

The solutions to these questions should aim to educate, inspire, excite and encourage new behaviours, so we can consciously consume.
